Col. Mosby.

Col. John S. Mosby, the famous Confederate raider, was at the Fifth Avenue Hotel one day this week en route to Boston. He wore a black slouch bat, a black freck coat and dark mocessin-striped trousers. His face is round, full and smooth, and ruddy complexioned. His eyes are cold bius and only lighten up when he smiles. The Colonel is growing stout, and the slim cavalry man of twenty years ago lives only in recollection. He has six wounds on his person, five bullet and one a sabre cut. One of the bullets remains embedded in his flesh. The bullets remains embedded in his flesh. The sabre cut was received during a fierce charge, but the gallant Federal cavalryman who gave it received a bullet in his breast from the pistol of Mosby. The Colonel now resides in San Francisco. When asked "Do you ever dream about the battles you were in?" he replied, "Oh, yes, frequently, and the dreams are very vivid. I carry a bullet in my groin and the type know. the dreams are very vivid. I carry a bullet in my groin, and that, you know, is a constant reminder. I think Grant was one of the greatest of generals. I admire Gen. Grant very much and was a personal friend. Stonewall Jackson I consider among the great generals of the world. He will rank in history with Alexander the Great, Casar, Hannibal, Bonaparte and Frederick the Great. He was a genius and had the brilliancy and dash of Napoleou. It is all nonsense to suppose that he could not have commanded an army just he could not have commanded an army just as well as a corps. I tell you that Jackson could have handled an army with the same degree of skill and dash as he did his wonderful corps. It often requires greater military genius to handle a corps and make i effective than to manouvre a large army No. Jackson is conceded to be the greate captain of the nineteenth century. Gen. Lee was great too. But I do not intend to make any comparisons, because they are odious. Suppose we have another war, eh? Well, I am not spoiling for another fight, but if my country should become involved in a war against a foreign power I would go in without hesitation." "Did you call on President Cleveland while at the capital?"

"No, I did not call on him nor any of his Cabinet officers. I was very busy anyway I cannot talk politics. I think the republican party is very strong, and will come into power again. I only wish they would run Roscoe Conkling for the Presidency." COMMUNICATED. My attention was called to an article in the Baltimore Sun of Juli. Washington correspondent, referring to the discharge made of 160 hands from the Washington pavy yard. It stated that a committee representing the discharged democrats had presented a communication to the Maryland democratic club, which stated that after their discharge 209 men on the rolls remained, of whom only seven were democrats. This discrimination was accounted for because the republican fore-men in power under the republican admin-istration had been retained, and when the This report led to the appointment of a committee to wait on the Maryland Senators and representatives with a request for their influence in putting a stop to the di-crimination thus made against the dem cratic workingmen and to restore the Mary land democratic voters who had been dicharged. The Washington Star of the 26th reported the arrival of that delegation, seaded by C. C. Lancaster, esq., who visited the Maryland members of Congress and made the request that they would call on the Secretary of the Navy and inform him that Superintendent Davis, of the Ordennea Department, had recently made 160 dis-missals, 157 of whom were democrats, while to discharge taxes on real and they claimed, the republicans were retain-school and capitation taxes due ed, and that they had received the promise of the Maryland Congressmento sea the Secwritten guarantees are given to retary of the Navy in this connection. If we will work to strengthen our party and keep the control, and whenever it becomes necessary to make a discharge, either in the offices that come under the civil service rule, or in any other department of the government, we discharge the republicans and return men of our own par-ty, and make all new appointments from the democratic party, we will in time have our own party in power, but we will never be able to hold the power; if we continue republicans in position who have the power, and will exercise it in discriminating against our party, when a reduction of force is or-dered, to discharge the democrats and keep in the republicans.
